

10-Minute Scripture Study with AI

Claude is the study partner, not the teacher. Learn to ask.

There's a difference between asking AI to tell you what a passage means and using it to help you study a passage yourself — and the watchman knows the difference. This week you take one passage and practice asking the right questions: context, cross-references, original-language notes, the questions a good teacher would ask. AI is the study partner across the table, never the authority in the pulpit.

THE ACTION

- Pick one passage you want to understand more deeply.
- Use AI as a study partner — ask it for:
 - The historical and literary context.
 - Relevant cross-references to compare.
 - Notes on key words in the original language.
 - The questions a careful teacher would ask of this text.
- Form your own understanding from the study — don't just accept the AI's summary.
- Test what you learned against trusted commentary or your pastor. AI can be confidently wrong about Scripture.

PARTNER, NOT AUTHORITY

AI will state errors about the Bible with total confidence. Use it to open the text and ask better questions — never as the final word. The Spirit and the church are your authorities, not the model.

SCRIPTURE

2 Timothy 3:16–17 — "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine." The Word is the authority; AI is, at best, a fast concordance. Keep the order straight.
